International Exploration Session CALL FOR PRESENTATIONS

2023 NSS Convention June 26-30, 2023 Elkins, West Virginia

This is a call for presentations for the International Exploration Session at the 2023 NSS Convention. The session will be all day on Wednesday, June 28.

The session provides the opportunity to tell your story about the exploration, mapping, and study of caves outside of the United States. Presenters include members of independent cave exploration expeditions and also recipients of the NSS International Exploration Grants Program.

Presentations can be on any topic related to international cave exploration. Previous talks featured locations including Mexico, Canada, Belize, Vietnam, Montenegro, and Lebanon.

Presentation lengths are usually 20 minutes; however, some 25 or 30 minute slots might be available depending on the number of presentations submitted.

The session will be chaired by Andrea Futrell. Abstracts can be emailed to her at afutrellcave@gmail.com. Your abstract must be limited to 250 words. Write your abstract as a summary of your conclusions and results, not simply a statement of what you are going to talk about. Also, please let Andrea how much time you will need for your presentation and if you need any special equipment. Please provide each author's name and email address. The author's affiliation and/or mailing address can be included if desired.

The deadline for submitting abstracts is May 15.

If you have questions about the session, please contact Andrea Futrell at afutrellcave@gmail.com.

Check the convention's website, nss2023.caves.org, for additional convention information.
